Weekly Legislative Report #3

Week Ending January 27, 2017

Amended FY 17 Budget Passes House

The Georgia House passed the FY 17 amended budget on Thursday and sent it over to the Senate. The appropriations bill incorporates $660 million in excess revenues that have accumulated since the beginning of the fiscal year on July 1, 2016. The measure includes $111 million for local school systems to handle student enrollment growth, $27 million to cover a 20% pay raise for state law enforcement officers and $50 million to build a new cyber security facility in Augusta. There's $2.2 million in the budget to enable the Dept. of Community Affairs to prepare for the next census count and $768,000 to increase the salaries of nurse surveyors under the Dept. of Community Health. Lawmakers put $5 million of the new money into the Governor's emergency fund to provide assistance to South Georgia counties hit by tornadoes and wind storms in January. The House will begin hearings on FY 2018 budget next week.

Legislators Roll the Dice on ~~Casinos~~ "Destination Resorts"

One House bill, HB 158 (Ron Stephens-R), and one Senate bill, SB 79 (Brandon Beach-R), have been introduced to create a Georgia Gaming Commission tasked to regulate "Destination Resorts" that will be permitted to feature "certain gaming activities" (the word "casino" is avoided). The identical bills call for only two of these specialized resorts in the state -- one larger development in a county exceeding 900,000 population in the most recent U.S. decennial census (Fulton) and the other in a county with a population between 250,000 and 900,000 (Chatham, Cobb, DeKalb, Gwinnett, or Clayton). The Gaming Commission, composed of five people (three appointed by the Governor), shall determine in which county the resorts should be placed. The larger of the two resorts requires a $2 billion investment, including a 1,000-room hotel. The smaller of the two requires a $450 million investment. The resorts are so-named because they would be obligated to produce 60% of their gross revenues from non-gaming activities.

Each of the two resorts will also be compelled to contribute $250,000 annually to a program to fight compulsive or addictive gambling.

The gross gaming income from the resorts will be taxed at a rate of 20%. Of those tax proceeds, 70% will be transferred to the HOPE Scholarship fund and 30% to a needs-based college scholarship fund to be created within the Student Finance Commission.

The legislation is believed to have the support of Governor Deal, but opinion in the legislature is definitely mixed, ranging from out-right opposition, to those who think communities such as Augusta, Macon and Columbus should also have a shot at landing such major job/economic development engines. At least some Democratic legislators from these areas want four or five resorts permitted. That's important because the above bills cannot be enacted without Georgians passing a constitutional amendment on the November 2018 ballot. Resolutions to put a constitutional amendment on that ballot are expected to be dropped next week, but they require a two-thirds majority to pass in each House. With division among Republicans, the votes of Democrats will be necessary, giving these smaller cities some significant leverage on determining the eventual number of casinos permitted.

Taking a Gamble on Changing the Lottery Formula

Under SB 5, (Bill Cowsert-R), Georgia's lottery officials would have to contribute a higher percentage of gross lottery sales to educational programs and devote less to winner payouts, salaries and administrative costs. Supporters are gambling that Georgia's HOPE program could reap a larger percentage of the lottery's take and also increase its overall income. The Lottery Corporation has statistics on its web site that argue a higher percentage of proceeds going to HOPE (thus reducing the amount of payouts) may actually decrease the total dollars available for educational programs by curtailing participation. SB 5 stair-steps distribution of lottery proceeds at 26% of gross sales going to HOPE and Pre-K programs in fiscal year 2018, 28% the following year, and 30% in FY 2020. Should gross sales decrease by 5% or more in a fiscal year, the percent of return would be frozen at the corresponding level.

Transit Council and Transit Commission Proposed

Sen. Steve Gooch (R-Dahlonega) has introduced SB 6 to create the Georgia Regional Transit Council to be composed of approximately 20 legislators, state and local government officials, and transportation planning officials. Under the legislation, the council would hire an outside consulting firm to help them develop a structure for a comprehensive statewide system.

The bill states that the council will "develop a strategic plan for this state's transit services that emphasizes creating efficiency and coordination by offering solutions to improve arterial mobility, develop alternative freight routes, and plan for a future of transportation innovations. The strategic plan shall be finalized and made available to the public by December 31, 2018; provided, however, that with approval of the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate, the council may continue its development until December 31, 2019, at which time its strategic plan shall be published."

"You've got a lot of different transit systems operating, but they're not operating as efficiently as they could or working together as well as we'd like to see it," Gooch explained.

A similar bill, HB 160 (Rep. Kevin Tanner-R), has been dropped in the House creating the Georgia Commission on Transit Governance and Funding. It has a slightly different composition and focus. The House Commission would “study and assess the needs for, potential methods of funding of, and means of providing a system of mass transportation and facilities for any one or more metropolitan areas in this state.” This Commission’s report would be due at the end of 2017.

GDoT Board Members Reelected

Two members of the State Board of Transportation were reelected to their posts in the Senate Chambers on Wednesday. Ann Purcell from the First Congressional District and Sam Wellborn, representing the Third District were approved by acclamation and without opposition. GDoT Board members are chosen by a vote of the state representatives and senators from their respective Congressional districts to serve five-year terms. Wellborn, a retired banker from Columbus, has served five terms already. Purcell, from Effingham County, will be starting her second term on the board following an 18-year career as a State Representative.

Surprise Billing Addressed

Sen. Renee Unterman (R-Buford) has introduced SB 8, a bill intended to address situations where a hospital patient has surgery or goes to the emergency room for treatment and thinks that the medical services are covered by their health insurance. The hospital and even the primary surgeon may be in their insurance network, but when the bills come they discover that a radiologist, anesthesiologist or other specialist who participated in the patient’s care is not. The “out-of-network” portion of the eventual bill can amount to tens of thousands of dollars.

“People are being forced into bankruptcy by out-of-network billing,” said Unterman, noting examples where medical bills total $100,000 or more.

SB 8 would require providers to disclose to the patient prior to the performance of non-emergency medical services that they are not part of the insurance carrier’s authorized network. Insurers would have to disclose to their insured similar information about the providers that are part of their network. SB 8 has a bipartisan group of sponsors that includes Republicans Unterman and Greg Kirk and Democrats Nan Orrock, Elena Parent, and Gloria Butler.

A similar bill, HB 71, is being sponsored in the House by Rep. Richard Smith (R-Columbus).

Georgia’s Probation Rate Is Problematic

Georgia’s Chief Justice Harris Hines delivered the “State of the Judiciary” to a joint session of the General Assembly on Wednesday. He told legislators that “Georgia has the highest probation rate in the nation.” While our prison rate is comparable to that of other Southeastern states, Harris told legislators, “We place four times as many adults on probation per capital than the national average . . . and we keep them on probation longer.” According to the gravely-voiced justice, half of probationers find themselves in the system for misdemeanors, including infractions as minor as being unable to pay a $100 fine for a broken tail light. Hines urged legislators to adopt recommendations being offered by the Council on Criminal Justice to address the problem.

The Chief Justice went on to discuss the need to provide legal assistance to persons, families and companies that aren’t affluent enough to hire their own lawyer, yet aren’t poor enough to qualify for legal aid services. “Financially solid individuals and large businesses can afford lawyers, but many mom and pop grocery stores, family farms and working class families struggle mightily to pay for legal services,” he said.

“This leads to too many Georgians having to represent themselves in court,” Hines explained. “I in no way suggest that we abandon our efforts to help the indigent, as there is a waiting list of those trying to get help from overworked legal aid attorneys,” he said. “But we must address this gap into which people of modest means have fallen.”
