Weekly Legislative Report #4

Week Ending February 3, 2017

Senate Approves the Hospital Providers' Fee

The bill that extends for three years the sunset feature on a hospital tax, SB 70, passed the Georgia Senate easily on Thursday, 50-3. The $311 million derived from the so-called “providers’ fee” is used to draw down federal Medicaid funds at approximately a two-to-one rate and generates more than $900 million total for state coffers. A floor amendment to have the fee sunset after only one year failed, garnering a mere five affirmative votes. As a $900 million hole in the budget would be hard to fill any other way, the measure is also expected to get expedited action at its next stop, the House of Representatives.

Cardiac Care Tiers

In an effort to improve the state’s poor ranking (38th nationally) in cardiac arrest deaths, Sen. Butch Miller (R-Gainesville) has introduced SB 102. It would among other things, provide for the establishment of the Office of Cardiac Care within the Department of Public Health, establish a three-level designation system for cardiac care among hospitals and require data reporting. States such as Arizona and Washington have improved their death-by-heart-attack rate by installing such tiers. Georgia has similar regimes for trauma and stroke centers. The bill was first read this week and referred to the Senate HHS Committee.

Craft Brewers Toast a Win

Perhaps the Senate was in a good mood Thursday as it also passed SB 85 by a margin of 49-2. This bill would allow craft breweries to sell the beer they manufacture at retail. Georgia is one of the last remaining states that still prohibits brewers from selling their own product at retail, requiring them to sell it wholesale to a separate retail establishment such as a bar, restaurant or store. The issue has been a battleground between the big beer wholesalers and smaller craft brewers for years. However, this legislation may be enough of a compromise to move the issue forward. The bill now heads over to the House.

Transporting Behavioral Health Patients

A Senate HHS subcommittee this week heard an introduction of SB 40 (Renee Unterman-R), a bill that would enable EMTs responding to an emergency to transport patients to a receiving facility if they have cause to believe the patient is mentally ill. Testimony was provided by both the EMS Services and Police from Gwinnett County. Currently, EMS services are not allowed to transport patients who refuse the entreaty. The example of a person on a highway bridge threatening to jump, holding up traffic, was used by the first responders testifying. That person clearly needs to be transported for professional help, but is not likely to give permission. An EMT would have to consult with a physician and describe the patient's situation before making an involuntary transport. The Subcommittee members asked numerous questions and more work on the bill is expected as the bill transitions to full committee. A substitute bill was referenced during the debate, but it has not yet been posted, so the bill on the General Assembly web site at this moment is not the exact working document.

Harder to Sue Negligent Bank Officers

Second term representative Beth Beskin (R-Atlanta) introduced HB 192 Wednesday, a bill that would make it more difficult to successfully hold bank officers and directors liable for negligence. If approved, the bill would make the threshold for liability “gross negligence,” which is defined as “a reckless indifference to or absolute disregard for the best interest of the corporation and its shareholders.” It would negate a unanimous 2014 Georgia Supreme Court decision (FDIC v. Loudermilk) that allowed suits to be filed based on mere negligence. The Loudermilk in that case is R. Charles Loudermilk, the founder of Aaron Rents and an officer of the Buckhead Community Bank, which was closed by the FDIC in December 2009.

During the recent Great Recession more than 80 banks failed in the state, making Georgia the national leader in that dubious category. According to the Georgia Report, Beskin explained that the bill would make Georgia consistent with other states. “It’s hard to get people to serve on bank boards if they’re open to legal liabilities,” she said.

Destination Resorts

In our last report we predicted that Resolutions to place a Constitutional Amendment (CA) on the November 2018 ballot to permit casino-style gambling would be dropped soon. They haven’t been introduced, yet. There remains a great deal of behind-the-scenes lobbying and negotiating over just how those CAs will be worded. We now anticipate the House Resolution, when introduced, will permit up to six casinos in the state, rather than two – an idea that appears to be gaining acceptance among some in House leadership positions.

And, of course, there is plenty of debate in store for the enacting legislation, which has been introduced already. Even those inclined to support the concept are divided over whether the 20% tax on casino profits is high enough and whether more than 30% of those taxes should go to needs-based scholarships.

Governor Creates “Older Adults Cabinet”

It didn't require legislation, but Governor Nathan Deal has created an Older Adults Cabinet that will advise him on issues affecting elderly Georgians. Deal noted that the state has one of the fastest growing populations of older adults in the nation -- a situation that will be exasperated as baby boomers reach retirement age. The Governor expects his cabinet to be instrumental in ensuring that "we have the infrastructure to meet their needs and the needs of their caregivers." The cabinet will include Wanda Taft, President of the Georgia Association of Area Agencies on Aging, among others. It will be co-chaired by the First Lady, Sandra Deal, and the Commissioner of the Department of Human Services, Robyn Crittenden.

Meeting Calendar Set

One of the major accomplishments of any General Assembly is to develop a meeting calendar that works for both the House and Senate. Some years it may take three or four "adjournment resolutions" before adjournment sine die is scheduled. To their credit, the leaders of the House and Senate this week planned out the entire rest of the legislative session, which is now scheduled to end on March 30. In case you're planning a visit to the gold dome, be sure to check the meeting schedule below. Recess days toward the end of session are needed to allow committees to "perfect" bills and finish last-minute business.

The General Assembly will be in session (subject to change):

February 7, 8, 9, 10

February 14, 15, 16, 17

February 21, 22, 23, 24

February 27, 28, March 1

March 3 (Crossover Day)

March 6

March 9, 10

March 13, 14, 15, 16

March 20

March 22

March 24

March 28

March 30 (Adjournment Sine Die)

Next Week

The General Assembly is in session Tuesday through Friday next week. However, the Appropriations Health Subcommittee will hold a hearing Monday afternoon for advocates who wish to testify on behalf of items in (or not yet in) the FY 18 budget.

Tracking List

Here are the bills we are tracking. New activity is noted in red. Click on the Bill Number to access the current version of the bill.

The 2017 Legislative Session is the first session of the 2017-2018 Term of the Georgia General Assembly. Therefore, bills not passed or defeated during this session will be carried over to the 2018 session. Bills pending in the House or Senate Rules Committees at adjournment sine die of the 2017 session will be recommitted to the committee from whence they came.
