Weekly Legislative Report # 5

Week Ending February 9, 2018

Undoing Some Tax Breaks

Three seldom-used income tax credits would be eliminated under SB 328, a bill that passed the full Senate on Thursday. The legislation is the product of a special study committee chaired by Sen. John Albers (R-Roswell) that is giving close examination to the efficacy of Georgia's numerous narrow-in-scope tax breaks. The bill would do away with income tax credits for private driver education courses, federal qualified transportation fringe benefits, and diesel particulate emission reduction technology equipment. Albers argued that it probably cost more to administer the tax credits than they are worth. The credit for diesel particulate emission technology hasn't been used in five years. The credit of up to $150 for driver education programs taken through private providers hasn't been popular either, probably because 114 of Georgia's 159 counties don't have a private provider.

Re-doing Some Others

While some very specific tax breaks were being removed in the Senate, the House was creating some new sales tax credits including one for construction of a $100 million expansion at the Georgia Aquarium found in HB 793.

Then, there's the sales tax break on jet fuel. Of course, the largest beneficiary of that tax break is Delta Airlines, a company that managed to scrape by in 2017 with a net profit of only $3.5 billion. The estimated cost to state and local tax collections would be about $50 million, but the argument is that Georgia has the fourth highest sales tax on jet fuel in the nation. Reducing the cost of tanking up might incentivize more international departures from Hartsfield-Jackson (appealing to folks like Amazon). A previous Delta-specific tax exemption was repealed in 2015. The new language would affect all purchasers of jet fuel. Clayton County officials testified that the tax break would cost their county and school board $18 million in revenues and that property taxes would have to be raised to make up for the loss. Chuck Efstrotation (R-Dacula), the Governor's floor leader who is carrying the bill, pointed out that Delta is already Clayton County's largest property tax payer with several other airlines in the top 10. The Governor's chief of staff tweeted that a federal law prohibits Clayton County from spending sales tax collected from the airport for anything other than airport improvements. The bill passed out of the Ways & Means Committee.

But Wait, It's More Complicated Than That

The jet-fuel tax break is contained in HB 821, a bill introduced on behalf of the Governor (annually) for the purpose of reconciling Georgia tax law with federal tax law. The big issue with the bill this year is that it says nothing about the windfall Georgia is expected to receive from taxpayers based on the recently passed federal tax law. In short, the federal bill reduced or eliminated some deductions that Georgians typically use to calculate their state taxes. And, because many Georgians will take a standard deduction on their IRS Form 1040, the state could realize an estimated $758 million in new revenues next fiscal year without changing state law. Gov. Deal has said he wants to address the implications of the federal tax bill in separate legislation after a more thorough study of how to make adjustments in Georgia law to neutralize the impact of the federal act on state revenues. A miss-step in either direction, high or low, could have significant budgetary ramifications. But no elected official wants to be held responsible for what could be sold during a political campaign as a state income tax increase. It's an election year – stay tuned.

Adoptions Bill Sent to the Governor

We reported extensively last week on the various specific disagreements between the House and Senate that were holding up passage of an adoption reform bill that nearly everyone favored. On Monday the Senate simply voted to “agree” with the House’s last amendment that allows for private attorneys handling an adoption to pay the living expenses of the birth mother during the final stages of pregnancy. The bill was then sent to the Governor for consideration.

Better Brunch Bill

Without doubt, the not-so-secret ingredient in passing legislation has again proven to be “compromise.” Without it the Official Code of Georgia Annotated would be a very thin volume indeed. Case in point . . . the “better brunch bill,” SB 17 (Renee Unterman-R), was in deep trouble last week as Senate Majority Leader Bill Cowser (R-Athens) positioned himself as a major hurdle to its ultimate passage -- until a compromise was reached. The bill would have allowed the sale of alcohol on Sundays at 11:00 a.m. instead of the current 12:30 p.m., where approved by local referendum. The compromise is that licensed restaurants can sell alcoholic beverages beginning at 11:00 a.m. on Sundays, but grocery stores must still wait to sell their cans and bottles until 12:30 p.m. Sen. Cowser said he still won't support the legislation, but under the compromise, he agreed to no longer stop it from coming to a floor vote.

The bill would put Atlanta restaurants and hotels on a level playing field with the Georgia World Congress Center (GWCC), a state property that is not required to abide by the 12:30 p.m. alcohol sales limitation. Atlanta restaurants and hotels say they suffer during special event and ballgame weekends when visitors would otherwise indulge in mimosas and Bloody Marys before noon-thirty. The sales tax collected on alcohol sold during brunch is also expected to enhance municipal revenues across the state. The bill has cleared committee in the Senate. A similar bill, featuring a 10:30 a.m. start time, passed the House in 2015.

Statewide Business Court

A resolution calling for the creation of a statewide business court has been dropped in the House Hopper. HR 993 by Rep. Chuck Efstration (R-Dacula) would ask Georgia voters to accept or reject the measure via a constitutional amendment question on the November ballot.

Healthcare Bills Clear Senate

A trio of healthcare-related bills passed the Senate on Wednesday. For children with autism spectrum disorder, SB 118 would raise the coverage age limit required of private insurance plans from six years to 12 years. By contrast, the State Health Benefit Plan (teachers, state employees and their dependents) provides coverage up to age 21. Bill sponsor Sen. Renee Unterman (R-Buford) pointed out that Georgia currently has the lowest private insurance cap in the nation. “To me that’s a travesty,” she said. “Raising it to 12 years old is a good compromise. Will it go up to 18 or 21 in the future? I hope so.”

Another Unterman bill, SB 352, passed without objection. It provides that the Governor will appoint a director of substance abuse, addiction, and related disorders to oversee a newly established Commission on Substance Abuse and Recovery. The bill is an attempt to address the opioid crisis.

By a vote of 53-1, the Senate passed SB 357, to create the Health Coordination and Innovation Council and establish a Director of Healthcare Policy and Strategic Planning. Sponsor Dean Burke (R-Bainbridge) told his colleagues, “We’ve got to collaborate, we’ve got to innovate if we’re going to change the outcomes for Georgia healthcare.” The bill also calls for the creation of a research institution to be known as the Health System Innovation Center. (The House has not yet acted on HB 769, an omnibus bill that creates a different center for research and innovation.)

Next Week

The General Assembly meets in session Monday through Thursday next week, checking off Legislative Days 19-22. With crossover day (LD 28) approaching, the House has 18 committee meetings scheduled for Monday alone. The Senate has a long day planned for Tuesday with 14 committees meeting.
