Weekly Legislative Report # 1

Week Ending January 17, 2020

The Georgia General Assembly launched into year two of the 2019-20 term on the second Monday in January as dictated by the state constitution. Bills that were introduced last year are still in play provided they haven't already passed or failed. The first week of the session was given over largely to pomp and circumstance with the highlight being Gov. Brian Kemp's State of the State address followed by the release of his budget recommendations.

Kemp told the legislators, members of the judiciary and guests gathered in the House chambers that the state of the state is "strong," citing record low unemployment and Georgia's ranking as the number one state for business (per Site Selection magazine). The Governor said he was going to get tougher on criminal gangs, including a $2 million bump for the GBI, and recruit additional foster parents by tripling the current tax credit. His budget calls for $28.1 billion in both revenues and expenses for fiscal year 2021 (begins July 1, 2020). That includes about $350 million for a $2,000 add-on annual pay raise for school teachers (they got $3,000 last year). State employees who make $40,000 or less would receive a $1,000 raise under the Governor's plan ($45 million total). But, because FY20's revenues have failed to meet expectations, numerous state agencies, including Public Health and Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities, have been asked to take significant cuts. Such reductions would hit rural areas particularly hard, and perhaps put a snag in the health and economic safety net the General Assembly has recently been knitting for the less populated portions of the state.

The Governor's Budget is a Recommendation

Technically called "The Governor's Budget Report," the budget is a fiscal plan containing all of the line items from the previous budget with recommendations for up or down adjustments, as well as requested new expenditures. But, the state constitution makes plain, "The General Assembly shall annually appropriate those state and federal funds necessary to operate all the various departments and agencies." A balanced budget is required and spending must not exceed the official revenue estimate set by the Governor. Thus, legislators will use the Governor's Budget Report as a worksheet of recommendations from which to create their own spending plan. That work will begin in earnest next week when the General Assembly invites agency heads to appear in person to defend the budget strategy the Governor has presented.

Revenues Abandoned

The Republican majority in the General Assembly made a commitment to reduce the state personal income tax by half a percent to 5.5%. In 2018, legislation passed setting up a two-step process. The first quarter-percent cut went into effect last year and is at least partially to blame for less-than-expected revenues this year. The 2018 legislation also dictated a vote this session on another quarter-percent cut. If passed, lower collections will cost the state an estimated $550 million in revenues – much more than the proposed raises for teachers and low-salaried state employees.

Revenues Untapped

New income is being sought from several sources. Rep. Ron Stephens (R-Savannah) has introduced HB 731, a bill that pumps up the excise tax on a pack of cigarettes from 37 cents (48th nationally) to $1.87. Health officials say a big tax increase is the most proven way to get smokers to kick the habit. If successful in weaning smokers from their addiction, the tax increase would also reduce Medicaid spending in the long run. We are also expecting a bill that adds an excise tax to vaping products. And, allowing casino destination resorts, horse racing and sports betting are all being discussed much more favorably by a legislature that's looking to improve the state's revenue stream. (See polling story below.)

Revenues in Reserve

What we haven't heard discussed much is the possibility of a draw-down from the state's $2.9 billion rainy day fund – the largest budget reserve ever to fill state coffers. As some programs initiated by the legislature to stimulate growth and extend healthcare access to rural Georgia are proposed for the chopping block, budget officials may soon be inquiring, "Is it raining yet?"

Marketplace Facilitator Taxes

One bill passed this past week that should help to enhance state revenues. The legislature approved a conference committee report Thursday on HB 276. This legislation cleared both Houses last session but in slightly different forms that couldn't be resolved before the final bell. The measure is intended to corral an estimated $150 million in taxes that have escaped collection in the past. It targets "marketplace facilitators" whose web sites or apps are used to sell goods or services provided by another party. (Think eBay, Airbnb, Uber, among others.) And, since you're thinking Uber, their lobbyists are said to be planning a different bill that will approach taxing ride sharing operations, well, "differently."

No 'Cotton Candy' Vapes

Sen. Renee Unterman (R-Buford) introduced SB 298 on Thursday, a bill that attempts to restrict sales of vaping products to youth. The bill raises the legal age to purchase vaping products from 18 to 21 and states, "It shall be unlawful to sell, offer for sale, or distribute, directly or indirectly, any vapor product with labeling or packaging made to be attractive to minors." Terms the bill specifically cites as attractive to minors include: “. . . 'candy' or 'candies' or variants in spelling, such as 'kandy' or 'kandeez,' 'bubble gum,' 'cotton candy,' 'gummy bear,' 'cupcake,' or 'milkshake.’” The bill was assigned to the Regulated Industries and Utilities Committee.

Poll: Georgians Favor Casinos, Maintaining Tax Rate, Expanding Medicaid

A poll published Sunday indicates that Georgians favor casino gambling (64%-31%), sports betting (57%-37%) and expanding Medicaid to “cover all the state’s uninsured poor” (65%-30%). Somewhat surprisingly, respondents also favored raising or keeping the state income tax rate the same over lowering the rate by a clear majority of 59%-38%. Mandatory seat belt use in the back seat of automobiles was hugely popular, receiving a 90% favorable margin. And, 78% of those interviewed said police should be allowed to temporarily take guns away from people who have been shown to be a danger. The poll was commissioned by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution and conducted by the School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA) at UGA. Students interviewed 1,025 Georgians (70% cell phones, 30% land lines) January 6th through 15th. There is a margin of error rate of 3.1%. The precise questions asked, additional issues queried, and other poll details can be found on the AJC web site. More results will be released on Monday. (Terry Mathews serves on the SPIA Board of Visitors.)

New Transportation Planning Director

Gov. Kemp has nominated Jannine Miller to serve as the State Planning Director at the Georgia Department of Transportation. Miller is currently Senior Advisor to U.S. DoT Secretary Elaine Chao and has previous experience at the Georgia Department of Economic Development, the State Road and Tollway Authority and the Governor’s Office of Planning and Budget. Kemp extolled her virtues saying, “Jannine’s experience in transportation policy, budgetary analysis and planning, and big-picture infrastructure development is truly unparalleled.” Miller is expected to be confirmed by the state House and Senate Transportation Committees. She replaces Jay Roberts who vacated the position last September.

Next Week

The General Assembly will be in recess all next week as is custom. They will take Monday off in observance of MLK’s Birthday, but will hold joint House/Senate budget hearings Tuesday through Thursday. You, too, are welcomed to listen in on the electrifying oratory of the state’s fiscal economist, the deepest held plans of the GDoT Commissioner, or explanations of the state’s applications for waivers to the Medicaid program. Gov. Kemp will kick things off Tuesday at 9:15 a.m. Here’s a link to the schedule, and here’s a link to where you can live stream the department head of your choosing. Be forewarned, the start times for individual speakers can often stray from what’s printed on the agenda.
