Weekly Legislative Report # 3

Week Ending January 31, 2020

A Salve for Budget Cuts

For two weeks we have reported that the major story at the Capitol has been the Governor's proposed budget cuts due to less-than-expected income and an emphasis on his own spending priorities. On Thursday the Governor signed a bill introduced last year and passed by the General Assembly on January 16th that helps to put a salve on some of those budgetary wounds. HB 276 requires the collection of sales taxes on online purchases handled by marketplace facilitators which allow third-party companies to conduct business on their websites. Estimates of how much new revenue the law will bring in varies from $120 million to $750 million per year. The bill takes effect April 1, so collections will start soon enough to help balance this year's budget. Uber, one of those impacted by the legislation, is trying hard to get an exception passed that would allow ride-share companies to pay a flat per-ride fee instead, as is done in many other states. Expect to see such a bill soon.

A Salve for Traffic Woes

Ever complained about the number of trucks on the highway? The Georgia Commission on Freight and Logistics has been studying ways to mitigate that problem, or at least keep it from worsening. Last week the House Transportation Cmte. passed HR 935, a resolution to extend the life of the commission through December. The Committee also approved Chairman Kevin Tanner's (R-Dawsonville) bill, HB 820, that creates the Georgia Freight Railroad Program, subject to appropriations, which means there's no funding for it, yet. Truck traffic creates great wear and tear on highways, not to mention congestion and safety concerns. Rail carries only about 16% of freight (by weight) in the state. The Commission has considered various remedies, including investing in more bridges and tunnels at rail crossings, and helping private rail companies (Norfolk Southern and CSX are the two largest) build parallel tracks that would allow freight trains to pass each other, move freight more quickly. But, don't write trucks off just yet, the economy still needs them. Georgia offers free tuition for students who study commercial truck driving at a state technical college.

Special Election Flap Subsidies

Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger offered a proposal Friday that appears to have extinguished the controversy over what's referred to as a "jungle" primary in certain special election situations. The immediate election in question is the vote to finish the regular term of former U.S. Senator Johnny Isakson who retired due to poor health. Gov. Kemp appointed Kelly Loeffler to serve until the next election (November), when she must run for re-election against other candidates from both parties to complete the final two years of Isakson's term. A bill had been introduced to force candidates into party primaries in May in such situations, but Governor Kemp had promised to veto it. Raffensperger suggested a bipartisan commission to review the special-election process and propose legislation, but not until after this fall's election. For the moment, the major political players seem content with that solution.

Right to Farm . . . and to Litigate

A Georgia Senate committee took another look this week at last year's "Right to Farm" legislation (HB 545), with an eye towards softening some of the language. Opponents remained opposed. The bill passed the House last year and would curtail the types of situations where nuisance complaints can be filed against farmers. In short, people who think chicken and hog farms can smell to high heaven feel the same way about this bill. Farmers think Georgia's largest economy often depends on farm practices that may be a tad malodorous and should be expected in agricultural zones. No vote was taken this week, but the bill is expected to sprout again.

Vaping and Tobacco Under Attack

Public health organizations are pushing a multifaceted approach to improve Georgians' health by reducing the smoking and vaping rate, especially among youth. Research shows the most effective way to reduce smoking is through imposition of huge jumps in the price. Rep. Ron Stephens (R-Savannah) has a bill (HB 731) to raise Georgia's 37-cent excise tax (48th nationally) to $1.87. Rep. Bonnie Rich (R-Suwanee) introduced HB 864 on Thursday that would charge 7% excise tax on vaping products. And, Sen. Renee Unterman is pushing SB 298 that would put age and other limits on vaping products. House HHS Chair Sharon Cooper (R-Marietta) has said she wants to ban vaping flavors and could amend one of the above bills to do so. Expect all of these bills to evolve.

Dual Enrollment Roll Back?

One of Georgia's most popular educational programs allows high school students to take college courses while still in high school – for free. The average dual enrolled student has accumulated 17 hours of college credit by the time they graduate high school. This helps the student get a head start in college, reducing costs not only for tuition, but room and board as well. HB 444, which passed the Senate Tuesday by a 38-18 margin, would limit the program to high school juniors and seniors in most cases and also reduce some course offerings. The reason for the cuts is that the program has grown from an $18 million expense for the school year ending in 2014 to $78.8 million in 2018. Under the current scaled-back plan, the state would still expend $101 million. The Senate made some changes to the original House Bill, so it will return to that body for a vote on agreement.

County Police Forces Under the Gun?

Sen. William Ligon (R-St. Simons) has introduced a bill (SB 317) that would allow local citizens to vote via referendum to disband a county (not city) police force and transfer its responsibilities to the Sheriff's Department. The bill appears to be a reaction to a grand jury report last fall that condemned the Glynn County Police Department over officer misconduct and poor coordination with the local sheriff. The bill passed committee by a slim 5-4 vote, so its future is uncertain.

Next Week

The legislature will be in session Monday through Thursday next week. The Georgia Community Action Association will observe GCAA Day at the Capitol on Wednesday, and it will also be Public Health Day.
