

Weekly Legislative Report #11

Week Ending March 28, 2025

This week brings us to the close of the 2025 Legislative Session. Monday is Day 38 followed by a committee workday on Tuesday. Wednesday is Day 39 with Thursday being another workday and Friday is Sine Die – Day 40. We expect to see some exceptionally long days filled with negotiating and maneuvering by both legislators and other interested parties. And, legislation presumed dead for the session may hitch a ride with a bill that is moving through the process.

The Senate passed a $37.7 billion FY 2026 state budget Friday that will require some compromises with the House on state spending. The budget, which passed the Senate 48-7, provides $170 million in additional spending to hire more correctional officers, give the current prison staff a pay raise, and provide technology upgrades to improve security. Inadequate staffing and deteriorating infrastructure were key factors in an audit the U.S. Justice Department released last fall that criticized the state prison system for failing to protect inmates from violence. The $170 million the Senate version of the budget recommends for the prisons represents a middle position between the $250 million in the House version of the spending plan and the $125 million Governor Kemp requested when he presented his budget proposals in January. That's one compromise the House and Senate will have to work out when their respective budget negotiators meet to come up with a final version of the budget before the 2025 legislative session comes to an end on April 4th.

Another major disagreement between the two chambers is over funding to launch Georgia's new private-school vouchers program the General Assembly approved last year. The Senate budget would fully fund the program at $141 million, the amount Governor Kemp recommended, while the House is proposing to cut the program to $40 million. The vouchers program, which takes effect July 1, allows students in low-performing public schools to transfer to a private school.

The budget also would include $302.3 million to cover student enrollment growth, fully funding Georgia's Quality Basic Education per-pupil funding formula, and provides a $14 million increase to reduce the size of pre-kindergarten classes from an average of 22 pupils to 20. Another $18.4 million would fully fund a new literacy program by hiring 116 literacy coaches. The Senate version of the spending plan would provide $600,000 to help the State Election Board carry out additional duties intended to let it operate more independently from the secretary of state's office. The spending plan calls for funding building projects with cash instead of borrowing the money. The building package include $44.5 million to complete the renovation of the state Agricultural Building in Atlanta and $31 million for a new STEM building at the University of North Georgia in Dahlonega.

Truck Weights

HB 164, truck weight limits bill, by Rep. Steven Meeks passed the Senate this week and heads to Governor Kemp's desk. The bill eliminates the July 1, 2025 sunset on the provision allowing heavier truck weights for agricultural products. It would permit trucks hauling certain agricultural products to weigh up to 88,000 pounds, 4,000 pounds more than the standard limit for other commodities. Existing restrictions would remain in place, including a ban on travel into metro Atlanta's non-attainment area and a 150-mile delivery radius from origin to destination. It passed the Senate 55 to 1.

Artificial Intelligence

By the time the 2025 General Assembly session gavel to a close in the wee hours of Friday night, Georgia lawmakers are expected to have taken the first steps to come to grips with the growth of artificial intelligence technology. A Senate committee approved a House bill Friday that would require the Georgia Technology Authority (GTA) and local governments across the state to develop plans for using AI and – importantly – to publish those plans online for the public to see. “Transparency is everything,” Rep. Brad Thomas, R-Holly Springs, sponsor of HB 147, told members of the Senate Science and Technology Committee. “If we can’t operate a transparent government, that’s where the breakdown of democracy starts. Two bills with that goal in mind, HB 171 and SB 9, have passed their respective legislative chambers and await action.

Senate Investigates

The Georgia Senate's Republican majority voted along party lines Thursday to investigate groups founded by former Democratic gubernatorial candidate Stacey Abrams after they agreed to pay the largest campaign finance fine in state history. A special committee of the Georgia Senate that has been investigating Fulton County District Attorney Fani Willis will now be empowered to expand its work to include Abrams. The committee can administer oaths, call witnesses, require production of documents and issue subpoenas. Sen. Bill Cowser, R-Athens, the chairman of that committee, said the expanded mission is needed “to keep the dark money out of our political campaigns.” SR 292 to expand the authority of the Special Committee on Investigations passed 33-21 along party lines.

Tort Reform – SB 69

On Thursday, SB 69, Governor Kemp's second piece of tort reform package sponsored by Senator John Kennedy was passed by the House 98 to 69 as a Committee Substitute and the Senate agreed 52 to 4 to the House Substitute as Amended late Friday afternoon. SB 69 proposes to regulate third party litigation financing practices in the state.

Next Week

The legislature will be in session Monday for day 38, in recess Tuesday for a committee workday, in session Wednesday for day 39, in recess Thursday for a committee workday, and in session Friday for day 40 -- Sine Die!
